

Harvard Teacher Fellows

APPLY NOW!

The mission of Harvard Teacher Fellows is to prepare teachers to promote educational equity through skillful teaching that prioritizes academic rigor, relationship building, and continuous learning.

We provide an innovative pathway into teaching for those committed to making a positive impact in high-need urban schools.

Who are we looking for

The ideal applicant will bring a willingness to grow and learn from others, a desire to contribute to a supportive learning community, and a commitment to social justice and serving students in high-needs schools. We also look for an outstanding academic record, strong content preparation in the subject area to be taught, and prior experiences related to education.

At this time, Harvard Teacher Fellows is only open to Harvard College seniors and alumni. Non-U.S. citizens or permanent residents are welcome to apply to HTF, but should be aware of the potential for significant immigration obstacles. Prior to submitting an application, please discuss your individual circumstances with Maureen Martin at the Harvard International Office.

For more information and to apply, go to:

<http://htf.gse.harvard.edu/admissions>