

Call for Applications!

Undergraduate Culture and Communication Consultants

2017-2018 Academic Year

The Bok Center's Professional Communication Program for International Teachers and Scholars is accepting applications for undergraduate consultants for Fall 2017.

Undergraduate Culture and Communication Consultants serve as course assistants for Bok seminars, workshops, and individual meetings, where they offer feedback and an undergraduate perspective on teaching and academic life at Harvard. Through interactions with international graduate students, consultants:

- Learn about college teaching, graduate student life and international graduate student experiences.
- Get hands-on practice with intercultural communication and learn about the process of language development.
- Build connections between undergraduate and international graduate student communities for more inclusive and productive classroom experiences!

We encourage students with an interest in teaching, intercultural communication, ESL and/or living and working abroad to apply!

Interested?

Fill out our online application at tinyurl.com/mksr5kl and email your resume to:
Sadikshya Nepal, Program Coordinator (snepal@fas.harvard.edu)

Application deadline: April 27th

Learn more: bokcenter.harvard.edu/undergraduate-culture-and-communication-consultants