Position: Part-time Unpaid Research Internship

The Dare Institute of the Dare Association, Inc. is looking for an energetic, organized, personable, positive, motivated and flexible research intern to start this fall. The research intern will have opportunities to help plan experiments, collect and analyze data, learn how to use statistical processing programs such as IBM SPSS, and collaborate with other interns and research assistants to write papers for journal submission. Interns have frequent opportunities to publish their work and present the findings at conferences.

The Dare Institute conducts research on human decision-making and development within the contexts of academia, economics, politics, institutions, businesses, medicine, and the law. Most of the research refers to the behavioral-developmental Model of Hierarchical Complexity (MHC).

Educational and other requirements:
- Currently majoring in Psychology or a related field such as Economics, Government, Biology, Computer Science, Mathematics, or Statistics
- Ability to work independently and self-motivate
- Excellent oral and written communication skills
- Interest in psychology research

Preferred but not required:
- Scientific writing (i.e., thesis, independent studies, co-authorship in journal articles)
- Experience programming, conducting research, or performing statistical analysis

This position has a flexible start date. Interns choose their own hours and are expected to work 6-12 hours per week. Students participating in the Federal Work Study Program are eligible to apply. Interested candidates should email a cover letter and resume to Dr. Michael Lamport Commons (commonsmlc@gmail.com) and Eliza Going (elizafinongoing@gmail.com).
