

THE TOBIN PROJECT

WINNER OF THE
2013 MacArthur Award
for Creative and Effective Institutions

PART-TIME RESEARCH ASSISTANT OPPORTUNITY

The Position

The Tobin Project seeks talented and motivated undergraduates and graduate students to contribute as paid, part-time research assistants for our Economic Inequality; Government & Markets; Institutions of Democracy; and National Security research initiatives. Interns will have the opportunity to gain experience doing early stage research identifying and analyzing important questions across the social sciences while collaborating closely with Tobin's research staff. Working on Tobin's cross-disciplinary initiatives offers exposure to projects involving leading scholars and provides excellent training for students considering careers in academia, law, or public policy.

“At a time of partisan gridlock, the Tobin Project is an oasis of big thinking aimed at the common good.”

—Michael Sandel,
Bass Professor of Government,
Harvard University

Qualifications

Our ideal candidates are college juniors and seniors and graduate students with strong writing skills and experience conducting independent research and/or assisting a professor's research. Research projects involve a range of qualitative and quantitative methods, and students with interest and skills in one or both types of analysis are encouraged to apply.
