

Paid Temporary Research Position in Somerville Lab

The Affective Neuroscience & Development Lab (<http://andl.wjh.harvard.edu>; PI: Leah Somerville) has a temporary staff position open for mid-June to mid-September. This position would be for 15-20 hours a week, paid hourly, with no benefits, from mid-June to mid-September. Students or non-students can be considered. This person will help with participant recruitment, testing, and data organization during our busy summer data collection period. Previous experience with human subjects research is strongly preferred, but no other specific skills are required. Specific hours are flexible, but afternoons and some weekend hours will be required. Candidates should send their CV/resume and description of their research background to lab manager Megan Garrad (mgarrad@fas.harvard.edu). Review of applications is on a rolling basis and will continue until the position is filled.
