

RESEARCH COORDINATOR POSITION IN THE AMP LAB AT BOSTON UNIVERSITY

The Approach Motivation & Participation (AMP) lab at Boston University is hiring a full-time research coordinator to help manage projects focused on mobile technology and experimental psychopathology. The AMP lab is located in Boston University's Sargent College of Health & Rehabilitation Sciences. Sargent College houses state-of-the-art interdisciplinary research teams focused on health and disability. Current AMP lab studies include several federal- and foundation-funded projects that require the leadership of a well-qualified candidate with interest in and experience in clinical psychopathology research. The position is available for one full year with high potential for future support.

Duties of the position will include coordination of day-to-day research operations, including:

- Participant recruitment
- Clinical assessment
- Running study sessions
- Supervision and training of research assistants to assist with data collection
- Management of study documents (e.g., IRB, lab expenses, other paperwork)
- Help in coordinating and attending weekly lab meetings

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS. Master's degree in psychology or related field or Bachelor's degree with two years of relevant research experience. Excellent time management and organization skills, including strong attention to detail. Strong interpersonal communication skills. Proficiency in Word, Excel, and PowerPoint. Able to be employed in the United States.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS. Knowledge of research methods. Experience using experiment administration software (e.g., MATLAB, E-Prime). Knowledge of statistics software (MPlus, HLM, R, SPSS). Proficiency in Word, Excel, and PowerPoint. Experience in programming (Java, Python). Experience working with individuals with serious mental illness (e.g., schizophrenia, bipolar disorder).

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. For additional information and to apply, please visit: BU Career Opportunities posting (forthcoming).
