

INVITA research project at E.P. Bradley Hospital is seeking an Undergraduate and a Graduate Volunteer to assist with our clinical study. INVITA is looking to test the efficacy of a culturally-centered treatment protocol on Latinx youth with suicidality.

A commitment of a minimum of 6 hours per week is required for at least 6 months. This practicum would provide an excellent research experience for future academic endeavors. We require volunteers to have some college courses in psychology or a related field. Applicants should have an interest in working with Latinx youth and their families. Spanish fluency is preferred but not required. We are specifically looking for volunteers who would be able to work in-person.

The Undergraduate Volunteer position will provide the opportunity to complete transcriptions of family interviews, learn coding of several research instruments, get familiar with research software, such as NVivo, End Notes, and SPSS, and gain valuable skills in research data management.

The Graduate Volunteer, in addition to the already mentioned opportunities, will be able to learn how to conduct psychiatric and suicide risk interviews with our adolescent participants.

To apply, please send a CV or resume, and a cover letter with at least one reference with their contact information. Please, express your interest by sending an email with the required documents to INVITA's Principal Investigator, Dr. Yovanska Duarte-Velez (Yovanska Duarte-Velez@brown.edu). An interview will be part of the application process. Applications are due by September 30 of 2022.
