

Equa Health (PI: David Creswell) invites applications for a full-time project manager position in Pittsburgh, PA. Initial appointment will be for 1-year, with additional years contingent upon performance. The position will start mid-late June.

This position will involve supporting study examining respiration dynamics during app-delivered mindfulness meditation lessons.

The project manager will work closely with PI David Creswell and Equa Health CEO Mathew Polowitz and will be responsible for providing various forms of research-related support, including recruitment, running sessions with and payment of human subjects, and data maintenance. The project manager will also support ongoing app development efforts by assisting with app testing and collaborating with the product team to synthesize and communicate participant feedback to inform iterative improvements.

Applicants should have a B.A. or B. S. degree in psychology, statistics, neuroscience, decision science, or other related fields. The ideal candidate will have excellent organizational and leadership skills, prior research and management experience, strong interpersonal skills, exemplary written and oral communication, ability to self-manage multiple projects, and the ability to work independently and as a member of a team. The project manager will additionally help manage a team of undergraduate and post-baccalaureate research assistants.

David Creswell's Equa Health utilizes research-supported methods to deliver mindfulness skills via the Equa mindfulness training smartphone application, in conjunction with our Health and Human Performance Laboratory at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh. You can find out more about Equa at our website: <https://equahealth.io/>.

This is a full-time, paid position with benefits. Please email a job application (consisting of your CV or resume, a short cover letter stating why you are interested in the position, and the names of three references whom we could contact about you) to Emily Grace Thomas at equahealthhiring@gmail.com. Interested candidates should apply by April 20th.