

Research Coordinator in the Alcohol and Sexual Assault Prevention Lab at Georgia State University

Georgia State University's Mark Chaffin Center for Healthy Development in the School of Public Health is seeking a Sponsor Funded Research Coordinator-I for the Alcohol and Sexual Assault Prevention (ASAP) Lab. The Research Coordinator will work primarily on coordinating data collection for federally funded projects to prevent alcohol use and sexual violence with a focus on health equity. Current grants focus on military personnel and college students. Research Coordinators will have dedicated time to scholarly activities to advance their career or to prepare for graduate school applications. Our goal is to identify highly organized individuals with a growth mindset to join our team! Minimum hiring qualifications include a bachelor's degree in the assigned research area; or a combination of education and experience. The ASAP Lab is located on GSU's downtown campus in Atlanta, GA. To apply, please send a letter of interest and CV to Dr. Amanda Gilmore (agilmore12@gsu.edu) and Dr. Nicole Mullican (kmullican@gsu.edu).
