

Recruitment Coordinator

The individual in this part-time position will be involved with coordinating recruitment and retention activities across two longitudinal Nashville-based birth cohort studies. This would include community outreach activities, recruitment of pregnant individuals and families into studies, scheduling and coordinating study visits, and managing long-term retention strategies. An ideal candidate would be based in Nashville and be interested in maintaining a long-term position within the laboratory to facilitate maintaining relationships with participants over the course of the study. Applicants from groups underrepresented in research are especially encouraged to apply.
