

Research Assistant at Rhode Island Hospital

The Rhode Island Hospital Acceptance and Mindfulness-Based Adult Partial Hospitalization Program (PHP) is seeking a research assistant (RA), with a potential start date of May/June 2023. The PHP serves adults aged 18 years and older who present with a range of psychological problems, including mood and anxiety disorders, trauma and stress-related disorders, substance use disorders, and personality disorders. It is an active clinical-research program, where data is collected from semi-structured diagnostic interviews completed with patients upon intake and from self-report measures of symptoms and processes at intake and discharge to allow for examination of treatment outcomes and processes of change. Candidates should be a recent or upcoming college graduate with a psychology or neuroscience major and an interest in going to graduate or medical school. Responsibilities of the RA will include conducting diagnostic interviews and writing clinical reports, collecting, entering, and managing databases, submitting and managing IRB applications, recruiting participants, and conducting other tasks associated with various ongoing or new research projects. Opportunities are available (and highly encouraged) for presenting research at national meetings and writing first-author manuscripts for publication.

Please send applications (cover letter and CV) to Mr. Javelle Stephens at jstephens@lifespan.org. For additional information or questions about the position, please contact Kristy Dalrymple, PhD (kdalrymple@lifespan.org).