

Analyst in the Center for Radical Innovation for Social Change at the University of Chicago

The Center for RISC is looking to hire a unique group of Analysts with different skills and backgrounds to work with us on tackling the world's biggest problems. Our analysts and alumni have backgrounds in data science, economics, mechanical and materials engineering, philosophy, journalism, software development, and political science, and have worked in research, consulting, tech, venture capital, and policy. RISC analysts research pressing social issues, identify promising solutions, and pilot those interventions in partnership with field-experts. Analysts also contribute to our portfolio of existing ventures based on their interests and expertise. Currently, we're focusing our efforts on building and scaling Project Donor and The Levitt Lab. Foster Insights and Data Science 4 Everyone are previous RISC projects that have now spun out!

Don't be discouraged if you lack the "perfect" resume – we're looking for people with clever ideas and the hustle to implement them. Our next hires will be eager to learn, unafraid of failure, and excited about making an impact. This is a full time position with a start date of August 2026, though earlier start dates may be considered. Both experienced hires and recent graduates are welcome to apply.
