

Talkspace Part-Time Research Assistant Postions

Seeking to Fill Two Positions Immediately (telecommuting encouraged!):

Organization Description: Talkspace is a leading provider of online and mobile therapy, offering messaging- and video-based psychotherapy as well as couples therapy and telepsychiatry services throughout the US and globally. The research team is presently working on three NIH-funded R01 projects and a variety of internal initiatives to enhance the platform and provide mental health support at scale. Talkspace is both the industry and research leader on digital mental health services.

Paid Research Assistant (2)

This is a good fit for someone looking to build research experience and go on to doctoral training or into data science roles.

Position Description:

- Flexible, part time (20 hours a week) schedule (paid at $20 an hour)
- Opportunity to gain experience in digital mental health
- Strong interest in telepsychology, wearables, and anything tech-in-psychology a must
- Oversees the primary operations of a NIMH funded grant
- Opportunities to publish for the interested and qualified candidate (though not required)
- Proficiency in R, Python, and/or Machine learning experience a big plus (though not required)

If interested, please identify the position you're interested in in the Subject line, and send the following to nicole.fridling@talkspace.com:

- Current CV
- A couple sentences/paragraph (max) on why this sounds interesting and what you'd hope to gain from the experience
- A statement that you could commit to stay in the position for at least a year