

Research Assistant in the Radcliffe Research Partnership Program

Behavioral neuroscientist Eduardo Mercado is in residence at the Harvard Radcliffe Institute this year continuing his research on humpback whales. Through the Radcliffe Research Partnership program, we wish to hire two Harvard College students to work under Professor Mercado's supervision on Revealing the Imperiled World of Whales. We pay undergraduates $18.00/hr to work in this program, where students can contribute to an interdisciplinary project on the acoustic ecology of whales and dolphins. Psychology concentrators in particular might be interested in this research.

Interested Harvard College students can apply HERE!